

Charcot-Leyden crystals in allergy

Charcot-Leyden crystals (CLCs) form during severe eosinophilic inflammatory pathologies. Although CLCs can activate the inflammasome, their ability to drive inflammation appears to occur through different mechanisms.

